A Universe of Storage Possibilities

The Spanish designer Nestor Campos has created Astro, a range of oak trays in four different sizes. The trays can be combined and stacked in different ways. Each tray has its own unique shape which makes the series visually dynamic. Common to them all is their rounded, organic form and their well-balanced proportions that create a harmonious expression whether the trays are used together or individually. Nestor Campos wanted to design a simple system to organize the small objects that we all own. For the things that don't have a set place in the home, but we use regularly. In other words; the things that often create a mess. He intended the design to allow for playing with the combinations and creating the exact storage universe that matches your needs.

The trays are inspired by the universe, leading to the name, Astro. Nestor Campos explains: “Last year I attended a workshop at NASA, and it made me think about how the universe is made up of chaos and order at the same time. The trays are an analogy of the universe. The planets move around in the universe on the same predictable course, but each planet contains chaos of elements. The trays also have predictable paths when they are placed one on top of the other, and at the same time they keep the chaos of small objects in control.”
The strong oak used makes the Astro trays durable, whilst the warm color from the wood adds a natural and exclusive look to the practical design. Use them on your desk for storage of office items, in the bedroom for jewelry, in the living room to create a still life of your favorite trinkets, or in the kitchen to store your oil, herbs, and spices.
