Geometric Shapes for the Home

The Geo range was designed by the Danish designer, Nicholai Wiig Hansen and is characterized by its minimalistic style and sharp, masculine edges. Geo has a stringent, geometric feel where all unnecessary details have been stripped away to create a stylistic design.

Nicholai Wiig Hansen explains: “My idea behind GEO was to make a vacuum jug that has character. I have worked with the various lines, circles and forms of the vacuum jug to create a geometric harmony and to give the jug weight and stability. Its shape is what gives Geo a sharp and graphic expression, and the masculine design perfectly counterbalances the lively colour combinations.”

The Geo Vacuum Jug is a great example of how gorgeous design does not have to mean making compromises when it comes to outstanding functionality. The Vacuum Jugs can hold the temperature of both hot and cold drinks over long afternoons while also making great decorative additions to any table setting. With their respective capacities of 1 and 1.5 liters, the Geo Jugs can easily be brought along on camping trips or used for afternoon coffee breaks and mornings on the terrace, with the larger version being ideal when entertaining several guests.
