Architecture-inspired Hook

Sticks is a simple and solid hook designed by the Belgian designer Benoît Deneufbourg. The simple construction made of three sticks creates a functional and decorative hook providing various options for hanging clothes.

The Sticks hook has obvious connotations to architecture with its simple, clean lines. Benoît Deneufbourg is fascinated by triangular roof constructions and intersecting beams that create angles, shapes and space. This is precisely where the designer has found his inspiration for Sticks.

Benoît Deneufbourg explains: ”The Sticks Hook is surprising and simple in its form. It is a hook that brings an unexpectedly playful element to the interior design, and it affords an opportunity for the user to hang his or her items in many different ways.”

Sticks is available in natural oak and black.
